Why attend

Digital technologies are not only changing how we work, but also where and when we work. Digital technologies provide essential services and solutions for all sectors of the economy and society. Robotics and artificial intelligence (AI) can support and replace personnel operating in hazardous environments. Big data can enable more effective monitoring systems. Remote working offers employees increased autonomy and flexibility. However, despite its benefits, the impact of digitalisation on occupational safety and health (OSH) is still emerging and relatively uncharted. It is important to explore the potential challenges and risks and to adapt the regulatory framework that promotes and protects workers' safety and health accordingly.

Attendees will hear from speakers who are experts in the area of human factors, psychosocial aspects and management of stress in the new work environment. Attendees will also hear from industry representatives and speakers on the topics of AI and Robotics.
