The Behavioural Health and Safety Team at the Health and Safety Authority invites you to a free webinar aimed at helping organisations enhance the quality and effectiveness of risk assessments for psychosocial hazards and human factors.

This session will cover workplace bullying, violence and aggression, and human factors. The focus will be on ensuring that control measures are meaningful and reflect real workplace conditions. Our Guest speakers from both public and private sectors will share practical experience of their organisations' risk assessments and how they implemented their controls to proactively manage psychosocial hazards in the workplace.

Why attend?

This webinar will help attendees to:

- Understand how to improve the effectiveness of risk assessments for psychosocial and human factors risks
- Gain insights into how human behaviour influences risk and control effectiveness
- Hear case studies from two organisations on how they designed their risk assessments and implemented controls

Who should attend?

- Employers and duty-holders
- HR and People Managers
- Operations managers
- Production managers
- Safety representatives
- OSH researchers and consultants
